GET READY TO GROOVE WITH GROOVAHOLIX

The Pussycat Dolls had some competition in the horizon - in the form of the lovely ladies of Groovaholix (Kana Lee, Leslie Ann Siy, Leilani Siy, Leslie Ann Oyanguren, Vanessa Wada, Kelly Vernon, Ashley Springall, Jacqueline Lin, Chanelle Wang and Christina Dela Cruz)! Based out of Alhambra, California, this all female dance company started out performing at community shows such as the Cherry Blossom Festival in Little Tokyo, Los Angeles and since then has been featured in night clubs, sports events, corporate events, pageants, auto shows...the list goes on.

Established in 2002, Groovaholix owes their existence to the owner of the dance studio they used to rehearse out of - Joanna Vargas. Her ambition was to bring together "a group of dancers who would push each other to succeed and further spread their love of dance" and the group definitely lives up to that ambition. They are constantly praised for their professionalism, versatility and their consistency in bringing enjoyment to their audience. But for the girls themselves, it is the camaraderie, their respect for each other and their shared passion for the art form that is dance is what they enjoy the most. But they also can't deny that they enjoy the rush of adrenaline that comes with seeing the smiles and hearing the applause from the crowd! It is undeniable that they hold true to their mission statement: "To create and showcase dynamic entertainment by uniting through friendship and passion for dance".

From performing on a semi-suspended plexi-glass stage in a nightclub in San Francisco to headlining the Asian Pacific Heritage Month Celebration in Seattle, Groovaholix has definitely proven that they are a class act and they plan on staying that way. They plan "to train harder and immerse ourselves in all styles of dance. To continue to travel and meet new people to whom we can share our love for dance. To hopefully be invited to perform in Australia!"
